

5: Find your position

[0:05–0:20] Learnings and questions

What are your biggest questions and takeaways coming into this discussion?

Participants

- Reflect on the resources and exercises you engaged with before today's discussion.
- What new things did you learn? How does that relate to your area of expertise?
- What questions would you like to address today? E.g. confusions, surprises, disagreements.

Facilitator

-  5:00 Ask participants to spend the first few minutes individually reflecting and writing in the box below. Encourage them to read each other's reflections and leave comments.
-  10:00 Facilitate a group discussion on the big questions, themes or takeaways raised.

Name	What did you learn?	Your open questions

[0:20–0:55] Pairs: test the position

Your partner's job is to find where your claim is weakest. Yours is to do the same for theirs. No advice; only questions.

Participants

- Paste your claim, all four parts, before you go in.
 - Presenter: read it aloud.
 - Partner: ask these three, in order, and don't accept the first answer.
1. Who else would apply for this, and what do they have that you don't?
 2. Which part of your claim is something you've done, and which part is something you believe?
 3. Everything helps a bit. What's the alternative you're giving up, and why does this beat it?
- Presenter: answer. Then write which question you couldn't answer well, and what you'd change.
 - Swap at the broadcast.

Facilitator

- 🕒 15:00 🕒 15:00 Open rooms. Broadcast the swap at 15 minutes.
- Visit each room for three to four minutes. Check the third question is being asked. If it isn't, ask it and move on. Add an objection of your own only if you know the area.

[illegible]

[0:55-1:00] Break

[1:00–1:40] How your views have changed

Five units ago you wrote what wild success would look like and which threats you thought mattered. Compare that to where you are now.

Participants

- Go back to the Unit 1 tab of this doc and copy what you wrote under "Visualising success" into the first column below. Do the same with your Unit 3 prioritisation if it helps.
- Then write two more lines: what you believe now, and what changed it.
- Share with the group. Include the claim your partner just tested, and what it's become.

Facilitator

-  5:00 Ask participants to copy their Unit 1 answer across and write the other two columns.
-  35:00 Go around; everyone shares. Use prompts like:
 - What did you think mattered most in Unit 1 that you no longer think matters most?
 - Which reading or conversation changed a belief, rather than adding one?
 - Whose claim in the room did you find most convincing, and why?
 - What's the one thing you're still unsure about that this course didn't resolve?

[illegible]

[1:40–1:55] Commit, and course reflection

Participants

- Paste your LinkedIn and the link to your draft below, then connect with everyone in the table before the call ends.
- What's been most valuable in this course? What would you change?

Facilitator

- 🕒 5:00 Explain the month: two dates, one post, and when a cohort-mate publishes, comment with one thing you'd push back on.
- 🕒 10:00 Final round: "What's the first message you're sending after this call, and to whom?"

Name	LinkedIn	Draft link	Takeaways / feedback

–END OF COURSE–